A. General Guidelines

Maintenance or retention of documents pertaining to property management, security and upkeep services shall be in accordance with the approved policies and procedures of the corporation on records retention.

All documents pertaining to property management, security and upkeep services shall be filed by the Business Development Specialist and turned-over to the Property Custodian or Administrative Assistant for custody and records management.

The records custodian shall ensure that information is provided in a timely and efficient manner regardless of urgency of request and that vital information are archived for business continuity and recovery.

A data base of acquired assets with PSA for property management, security and upkeep shall be maintained to:

- Effectively monitor the status of the property
- Determine the number of property with PSA and the number of titles
- Have readily available information on the account name, location of the property and start date of the PSA
- Record when the property was turned-over

The hard copy of the monitoring database shall be made accessible to all personnel to ensure timely verbal and written response to clients and stakeholders.
